TrainE-Traide, the organisers of the Jewish Business Awards have announced today that Lord Young of Graffham, will be the guest of honour at this year's business lunch on the 3rd March 2011. Lord Young, who stepped down last month as the Government's Enterprise Tsar has also previously served as Secretary of State for Trade and Industry and Secretary of State for Employment under the premiership of Margaret Thatcher. He is also the author of the hugely influential review of workplace Health and Safety laws in the UK entitled, Common Sense, Common Safety as well as being an extremely successful entrepreneur and businessman in both the public and private sectors.

Nominations are now open www.traine.org.uk for the awards, which have become a showcase for the finest business talent in the Jewish community, from the most innovative entrepreneurs to much more established corporate firms.

The awards aim to recognise the best of business from within the Jewish community or businesses which impact upon the lives of Jewish people.

Businesses can either nominate themselves or be nominated by a third party who thinks a business deserves recognition. All nominations must show a link to the Jewish community or demonstrate how the nominated business impacts upon the lives of Jewish people in the UK.

There are three categories in the TrainE-Traide Jewish Business Awards 2011, now open for nomination:

* Business of the Year

This award is awarded to an outstanding company whose growth, ambition and quality of management has enabled it to deliver first-class results in the past 12 months.

* New Business of the Year

This award will be awarded to a new business that has... continued on page two >
